LIMBO

Limbo is a collaboration between two Canadian emerging artists. Both working on and exhibiting their own projects with Artéria for a few years now, it was only a matter of time before Christian Dorey and Martin Fontaine started working together on an artistic project.

Originally from Vancouver where he graduated from the Fine Arts department of Emily Carr University of Art & Design in 1998, Christian Dorey has been living in Montréal since 2001. His art is heavily inspired by pop art and the expressionism movements and mixed with fragments of pop culture, coming from music and cinema to political icons.

Martin Fontaine was born in Sherbrooke in 1976 where he studied Visual Arts and Graphic Design. He is also part of the artistic duo MM. Currently Art Director for a major US Software company, he's been creating award winning Web and Graphic designs for over 18 years. His passion for visual design is always present in his art, where he brings his graphic touch in very distinct styles to each of his collaborative projects.

While both artist have exhibited their works around the globe with Artéria, Limbo's work has been exhibited in New York City and Hong Kong, Singapore and will soon be shown in Miami and London.
